NINETEEN HUNDRED THIRTY-NINE

VOLUME XV

PUBLISHED BY

THE SENIOR CLASS OF GRAINGER HIGH SCHOOL

KINSTON, NORTH CAROLINA

FOREWORD

The tomorrows, and tomorrows, and tomorrows full of new hopes and ideas are not to replace the pleasant and eventful years spent in Grainger High, but to put into practice the teachings and experiences that help to make our lives more complete. So we hope that this fifteenth issue of the KAY-AITCH-ESS will be a happy reminder of past years, and that it will be an inspiration to those who follow us.

DEDICATION

We, the Seniors of '39, dedicate this fifteenth volume of the KAY-AITCH-ESS to Mrs. Ed Phillips, who has so patiently directed the plays of Grainger High and who has so readily helped us throughout our high school career.

CLASS HISTORY

THE DAY dawned bright and clear; the sun peeped over the horizon and then burst forth in dazzling radiance. It was the beginning of a new day and a new life for the group of young people who trooped into Grainger High eager to begin their high school career.

Eyes wide with wonder and hearts full of apprehension, these new Freshmen destined to be the senior class of '39 dutifully fell into routine. They chose as their president Forrest Pully and under his able leadership they displayed their abilities in the many activities in which they participated.

Music drew the attention of many. An A Cappella choir was organized and won much admiration. Sports were participated in, and in Student Council work these new Freshmen distinguished themselves as worthy and capable members.

As the sun rose higher in the sky, so the Freshmen became Sophomores. After the first long year had passed, the second found them progressing with the ease that comes from practice and hard work.

With Ned Mewborn as their leader they hastened on to win further laurels for their Alma Mater.

Now the sun sank gradually lower, nearing the end of day and the promotion of the Sophomores to the Junior Class lessened their high school days. To guide them through the confusion of their Junior year they selected Jimmy Rochelle, who proved himself a very capable leader.

Schedules had to be checked, units had to be straightened out, and colleges had to be chosen.

Then there was the matter of class rings. Were they to be solid or should they have a stone? After much discussion the solid rings won, were ordered, and met with the satisfaction of all.

Many of the Juniors distinguished themselves in sports, and for their efforts received letters which they proudly displayed to all. Music letters were awarded to many for the splendid work done in that department. In the latter part of the year several were given Quill and Scroll pins, which in their own little way told everyone that these, by their work on the school paper, had met the necessary requirements and now were full-pledged members of the Quill and Scroll Honor Society.

The problem of the Junior-Senior banquet next was brought up and settled. It was a delightful as well as a memorable evening for all.

Day was drawing to a close; the sun was setting. The last course was nearly run. Seniors now, the troop who had entered high school so timidly four years before were nearly ready to leave. The old tradition of senior dignity had to be upheld, and though a difficult feat to accomplish, these Seniors succeeded, with Mary Marsh Hood as their president.

As Seniors they made the best of their last year. In the early part of the first term many attended the Carolina-V. P. I. football game at Chapel Hill on High School Day. Later, representatives from the Senior class journeyed again to U. N. C. to hear an address by President Roosevelt.

In a drive for the nine-months' school term the Seniors threw themselves wholeheartedly into the work to help make it a successful campaign. And they succeeded.

The high spot of the year was the Junior-Senior banquet. The Juniors were gracious hosts and furnished an enjoyable feast as well as a pleasant evening.

Darkness covered the earth; the sun disappeared below the horizon in a brilliant sunset, as the Seniors bade farewell to Grainger High and looked forward to tomorrow--another day and another life.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

*State of North Carolina,
County of Lenoir,
City of Kinston.*

WE, THE UN-dignified class of nineteen hundred and thirty-nine of Grainger High School, afore-said state, county, and city, being of doubtful minds and tired feet, do hereby make and proclaim our Last Will and Testament.

We, having passed (by the skin of our teeth) this phase of our education, wish to dispose of our assets, rights, and privileges (if any) in the following way:

ARTICLE I

Section 1. To the faculty we leave an abundance of appreciation for their stick-to-itiveness in having borne with us during our high school career.

We also leave them our sympathy (using ourselves for examples) for the "lame-brains" that they are to have in the future.

ARTICLE II

Section 1. To the incoming Senior class we leave the Senior Privileges. We sincerely hope they can find some and use them, as we were unable to discover any.

We also bestow upon them the right to publish the KAY-AITCH-ESS for 1940.

Section 2. To certain members of the incoming Senior class we bequeath the following peculiarities:

The brilliant minds of Mary Marsh Hood and Pete Pully to Frances Wood and D. W. McLawhorn, respectively.

Eleanor Howard's "horse craze" to Frances Moore.

Rachel Edward's good looks to be divided among the girls.

Margaret Tull's dancing ability to Mary Olivia Long.

Amine Galbreath's talkativeness to Mary Sugg.

Helen Sutton's "come-hitherness" to Margaret Caroon.

Harry Cummings' ability to argue to Fleming Jeffress.

Jimmy Cook's comic personality to John Ward.

Section 3. To the smart Sophomores we bestow our uncanny ability to make up excuses and get out of work.

Section 4. We bequeath to our dear little Freshmen the art of chewing gum in classes unnoticed (this doesn't apply to Mrs. Phillips' classes).

ARTICLE III

Section 1. To the school and student body we leave:

The Ki-Hi to be published every month.

The Student Council to protect the lives of students.

The "Candlelight Service" and "Honor Solo" to become a tradition of G. H. S.

A swell football, basketball, and baseball team and plenty of school spirit to back them.

The bell which rings every school day morning at the fatal hour of 8:50.

ARTICLE IV

Any other will or testament made by us is declared void upon the publication of this, our last one.

In witness whereof, we, the Senior class, do set our hand and seal to this will on this dramatic sixteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine.

SHIP SUCCESS—G. H. S. LINE

May 28, 1949

MR. PETE PULLY,
SUPERINTENDENT OF GRAINGER HIGH SCHOOL,
KINSTON, NORTH CAROLINA.

DEAR PETE:

I have just won a free trip to London as the best illustrator of '48. I am not only thrilled over that fact but over having seen so many of our classmates in New York while I was preparing for my trip abroad. I knew you would be interested in hearing about our mutual friends. The ship set sail yesterday, and, by the way, Kenneth Carpenter is the owner of the G. H. S. Lines. Elaine Buck is his assistant and secretary.

While coming up to New York from Richmond, I stopped in Washington to see Secretary of Labor, Wilmer Leary, and his assistant, Oliver Barnes. They told me of Frank Horton's newspaper in Washington, THE HORTON TRIBUNE, and so I went to see him. To my amazement I found Bill Howard his assistant editor and Jerome Pearson, business manager.

As I left Washington, I saw Margaret Tull, and she said she's running a dog sanatorium for tired feet (Boy! Oh boy! What dancing!).

In New York I went to see Ruth Andrews' theater where Helen Sutton stars in productions. Doris Mumford is Ruth's costume designer. And by the way, Mamie Hocutt has established the "Miema" Cosmetics and Edna Gray is her business manager.

Jack Shields is a famous doctor in New York, and his nurses are Pauline Evans and Hilda Scott. His greatest rival is the Zeb Moseley Clinic.

Hal Worley has opened up the P. C. Pop Corn Factory and Virginia Smith is his able secretary. Handsome Harry Cummings runs the largest drug business here in New York, while Martha Dixon runs the largest cafeteria.

I went to Bruce Farabow's night club the other night to see him. Mildred Everett is his dietician, and his chorus of dancers include Dorothy Wells and Elizabeth Scott.

I am very happy over my trip and over having seen so many of the class of '39 before sailing. Write me soon.

Yours,
JIMMY COOK

GRAINGER HIGH SCHOOL, KINSTON, NORTH CAROLINA

June 4, 1949

DEAR JIMMY:

I certainly was glad to hear from you and receive news about our school friends who are in Northern cities. It was wonderful that you won a trip to London—some folks have all the luck though! When you return to America, come by Kinston and see the members of our class who are here, for quite a number are still in their home town.

Edwin George, you know, owns the radio station here, W. G. H. S. Olivia Hood conducts the Children's Birthday Hour over the station, and Amine Galbreath gives the latest news and gossip over the same station. Roland Faulkner and John Arnold are announcers. Virginia Potter is the station's secretary.

Of course you knew Payne Dale is our mayor and Dorothy Aldridge is his secretary. In Grainger Hi we have as teachers Ann Becton, and Marion Cooke. Earl Tyndall is the football coach. Lizzie Avery is his secretary.

Clifton Sutton is president of the largest bank in Kinston, and Jimmie Rochelle is vice-president.

You've probably heard of "Screwball" Suzanne Waldrop's fame. She has an architect's job in Kinston, and as a side line she sings grand opera at the "Met" in New York.

Celeste Pate is the owner of Hix Dill, an insane asylum near Kinston, and her chief psychiatrists are Virginia Pittman and Retha Pate.

Ruth Green is still looking for a husband with his last name the same as that of a color, like White or Grey.

Robert Wertherington is the head coach at Carolina now, and Bobby Nesbitt is the coach at State.

The foremost woman author on love advice is Mary Emma Wilkins. Another author is Rosalie Abdallah, who recently wrote a book on the childhood days of the leading movie producer, Ned Mewborn.

Jesse McDaniel is an auctioneer and independent tobacco expert. He recently appeared over radio in Hit Parade.

It's fun and interesting exchanging news like this, so I'll write when I learn more and I'll expect you to do the same.

Best Wishes,
PETE

HOTEL DONLIN, LONDON, ENGLAND

July 5, 1949

DEAR PETE:

You would be surprised how many of our schoolmates have even come to London and are living here now. There is Dorothy Craft, a dress designer; Louise Odom, an interior decorator; Frances Spear, hair designer; and Frances Quinn, a beauty shop operator.

Of course you've heard of Spencer Rubin and Vance Tyndall in America—they are the most famous "before and after" team in the world. They advertise everything from tid-bits to thumb tacks. They are vacationing in London now.

Sara Snyder has an all-girl orchestra, and they are playing here now. Juanita Johnson is her pianist; Jerry Jackson is her vocalist, and he dances too. Roger Brooks composes songs for her, and as a side line he operates a tobacco warehouse in Kentucky.

Rachel Edwards is the owner of the Edindoodle Stables, and is the foremost horse-woman in England.

Dorothy Mallison has taken Madeline Carroll's place in the British movies with Charles Glick as her press agent.

Fred Joyner teaches physics here in Oxford University.

I am coming home about August 15. Please try to get to New York and bring some of our old classmates along to meet me.

Au Revoir,
JIMMY

HOTEL SPRUILL, NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

August 20, 1949

DEAR PETE:

I am in New York now, staying at Betty Lee Spruill's Hotel. Thanks for notifying the class of '39. I had a wonderful visit with them. Surely sorry you weren't able to come up yourself.

I know you will want to hear about some more of our classmates whom you haven't seen in a long time either.

Jeanne Collins is an airplane hostess now on Frances Cox's airlines. Who said women can't run big business!

Elizabeth Dawson and Caroline Faulkner own and operate the Dawson Beauty Salon in Columbus, Ohio; they came to see me.

Grace Jones, Carolyn West, and Sara Rountree are models in Margaret Gray's Fifth Avenue Shop.

Pauline Grady is the newest woman tennis champion, and Margaret Jarman is the Olympics Champion in diving.

Mary Marsh Hood, who has taken Shirley Temple's place in the movies, and Joan Garbo (we knew her as Eleanor Howard) flew to New York to see me.

Charles Pratt, Forrest Pully, and Harvey Wells are America's foremost makers of sports goods.

Edwina Walker is an actress in Chicago, but she couldn't get here.

Elsie Jean Horton, Maude Johnson, and Nancy Sugg are all secretaries and are employed in and around Times Square.

Jesse Jones was recently voted the most handsome New York Giant player. Edgar White is assistant manager for the club. Mary Lewis Rochelle is their most amorous fan; she follows them wherever they go.

James Turner and Hugh Stroud are reporters for the NEW YORK TRIBUNE and Doris Turner is the society editor of the paper.

Mary Elizabeth Temple has become a great baseball player. She's now coaching at La Grange. She's terrific!

While we were all together, we decided to try to get everybody to meet for a class reunion next May at old Grainger High School. Do you suppose the "principal" will approve?

Wish I could come down to Kinston to see you and all the gang now, but I have just received an assignment to do some illustrations for Rosalie Abdallah's new book.

However, I will see you at the reunion next May—if not before.

Yours,
JIMMY

Nor up our family tree,
So that is why we seniors
Aren't the poets we should be —in IIA English.

Now listen, my children,
And you shall hear,
About that Washington-Kinston
football game of the year.
We brought home the prize football again!

All the laddies trying to look handsome,
For that picture in the

for the girls, the dears,
When the Junior-Senior
Banquet nears!

And when the senior play

The Kay-Aitch-Ess has come!

The present Student Council of Grainger High School was organized in 1930. The purpose of its organization was to develop in the students a sense of self-government and general improvement of the school.

Since the organization of the Student Council, long strides have been made in these directions. More student participation in self-government and student discipline replace the idea of strict faculty discipline in the modern schools.

The Ki-Hi was established by a 10-B English class as a result of interest aroused in a brief study of journalism, in the fall of 1931. The first issue was a mimeographed paper bearing the date September 25, and the name G. H. S. News. The present name was selected by the class from a number submitted in a student contest—an abbreviation of "Kinston High." After the first issue the paper appeared in its present form, a four-page, five-column monthly. Paul LaRoque was the first editor.

In the seven years of its existence The Ki-Hi has been wholly self-supporting, the expense of publication being met by subscriptions and by advertising solicited by the business staff from Kinston business men and women.

The Ki-Hi is a member of the National Scholastic Press Association, from which it receives criticism annually upon submission of copies of the paper.

A chapter of Quill and Scroll, national honorary journalistic society, has also been organized.

The purpose of the Ki-Hi is to record school life, encourage student activities and individual accomplishment, interpret the school to the community, and give students opportunity for self-expression through the medium of news and editorial writing.

Love,
"Tichie"

In 1929 the first marshals of Grainger High School were chosen. These marshals were selected on a basis of scholastic averages during the first seven months of the school year. They first served at the commencement exercises and served throughout the following year at all school performances.

The marshals are composed of four rising seniors, three rising juniors, and two rising sophomores, all having the highest scholastic averages in their class. The student from the rising senior class who has the highest scholastic average during his or her junior year acts as chief marshal. All the marshals wear a regalia of soft blue satin when serving.

JANITORS

To have a clean building in which to begin the day ranks in importance, to our way of thinking, with having a fresh mind in which to store knowledge in the morning. And it is the janitors who prepare this clean place for us each afternoon when the teeming masses of boys and girls depart for home.

Two of these janitors have seen long years of service in the schools of Kinston. Robert Saxon, the head janitor of all the city schools, has worked in the Kinston schools for twenty-four years and has seen many classes enter the first grade and graduate from the eleventh. Sim Grady has been employed as janitor in Grainger High for nine years. Among his numerous duties he looks after the furnace, and that shovel he holds in his hand is not merely for adornment—he makes good use of it stocking the fires those cold winter days!

Linwood Brown has been with the Grainger janitorial force two years and Roberta Hawkins only one year, but they have already learned from their experienced co-workers how to give efficient service and to render that service in a pleasant manner.

Love,
Joy
